

Associate in Science (825)

In the profession of nursing, there are many levels of practice and an array of career options. Registered nurses (R.N.s) work in a variety of health care settings as well as in industry and schools. Nurses may provide direct patient care in hospitals, nursing homes, or the patient's home. The skills required of registered nurses include critical thinking, communication, and technical clinical skills.

Registered nurses with Bachelor of Science degrees may have greater opportunities to work in community settings such as Public Health Departments or schools or in other leadership positions. Advanced training in the form of master's and doctoral level degrees are available in nursing, further increasing the registered nurse's employment and leadership opportunities.

Students who have already chosen the four-year institution to which they plan to transfer should consult that institution's catalog or department advisor and an SVCC counselor or academic advisor in their program. (Refer to the ADN program.) Individualized articulation sheets for some universities are available in the counseling office.
